Mathematical Formulas: Mathematical Tables and Formules

The table below lists the common logarithms (with base 10) for numbers between 1 and 10. The logarithm is denoted in bold face. For instance, the first entry in the third column means that the common log of 2.00 is 0.3010300.

Vector calculus identities - Wikipedia

In the second formula, the transposed gradient ( $\nabla^T$ ) is an  $n \times 1$  column vector,  $\nabla$  is a  $1 \times n$  row vector, and their product is an  $n \times n$  matrix; this may also be considered as the tensor product of two vectors, or of a covector and a vector.

Algebraic Identities - Byju's Mathematics

The algebraic equations which are true for all values of variables in them are called algebraic identities. They are also used for the factorization of polynomials.

Some vector identities - Mathphysics.com

This document collects some standard vector identities and relationships among coordinate systems in three dimensions. It is assumed that all vector fields are differentiable arbitrarily often; if the vector field is not sufficiently smooth, some of these formulae are in doubt.
